Cracraft appeared for the State, and L. S. Jordan for the prisoner. After the evidence for the State was taken young Oliver was discharged, a case not being proved against him. Some of the testimony was very amusing. One of the ahort-haired boys from the Top mill, when instructed by one of the attorneys to proceed with his evidence, closed one eye, looked at him and said: "Looky hure, young feller; just wipe off your chin, pull down your vest and don't give yourself 'away fifin' around here like a drum major in a Mardy Grass blowout. A BAD DAY.—A snow storm prevailed nearly all all day yesterday, and with the mad and slush on streets and pavements kept people generally indoors. work done under the direction of the Executive Board was foind to be very satisfactory to the Managers. No business of importance was transacted by the Board, with the exception noted above. STATE BOARD OF CONTENSIAL MANAdeeds of trust were admitted to record at the County Clerk's office during the month of February. THE Baresville brass band, which ac-companied the Parkersburg excursionists to the Mardi Gras, left for home on the steamer Express yesterday. COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS .- Richard M. BLOODY W(H)INE.—About 3 o'clock yesterday morning Silvey, the druggist, was awakened from a sound sleep by a terrible racket at his door below. Hurriedly dressing and descending he found a certain well known business man ener-getically pulling the bell, who begged him "for God's sake to do something for FEBRUARY WEATHER REPORT.—The coldest day in February was the 5th, when the thermometer indicated eight degrees above zero; the warmest day was the 11th, the mercury being up to sixty degrees; rain fell on eight days, and snow on eleven days. him "for God's sake to do something for him, as he had vomited up an immense quantity of blood." Upon investigation, the druggist found the supposed blood to be nothing more or less than red wine which his visitor had indulged in while celebrating the advent of King Comus. He gave his patient an antidote, however, which put his stomach in better condition. Ir the newspaper reporters only knew whether the ice men want cold weather so as to make ice plenty, or mild weather to make the price high, they could get up heir items on the subject with a little more consistency with each change of the weather.

WHAT A STREET CAR DRIVER HAS TO WHAT A STREET CAR DRIVER HAS TO SAY OF THE PUBLIC.—The street car driver probably sees as much of the rough side of human mature as any other man in existence. His opinions of mankind in general may, therefore, be somewhat cynical, but on the whole their possess the merit of originality. He is not often possessed of a ready tongue, but when he does become persuaded to unburden himself and give vent to his views of men and things, he gives the public away with a willingness and heartiness which speaks more for his endurance in the past than his charity in the present.

"It's hard enough," says the representative driver, as he throws away his quid, "to be compelled to stay out from day."

the ladies are harder to please than the men?"
"That's hitting it square on the head," said the man of the reins. "If you have a load of men they are generally easy to get along with—that is if they are sober; but the wimmen cause us lots of trouble."
"In what way?" asks the listener.
"Well, you see the men are generally good-natured, but 'the ladies look at everything in a different light. Most of 'em put on a look as sour as vinegar, cut the driver almost to pieces by their sharp glances, and give the company away at a ances, and give the company away at when they are not exactly leased. They'll pay one fare for them elves and refuse to 'come down' for the child who is with them. But that don' hinder their giving the child a seat and making people stand who do pay. Of course some of 'em holds their children making people stand who do pay. Of course some of 'em holds their children, but its an exception to the rule. They're carcless in a good many other ways, too."

Diverted a moment from his communications to answer the ball, the driver put on brakes, sprung the door open, pulled it shut and again moved on. With the starting of the car his eloquence again flowed on. "You didn't see that move? No? Well, a lady passenger got in then. I saw her in the street just ahead of the car, and raised my hand, as much as to say, 'Car, madam?' Did she answer? Not much. She merely took a square look at me, never shook nor bowed her head, but left me to understand that she didn't want any street-car in her'n. But just as soon as I got by the basses to ware heaven a mere has a me a super a law of the control of in her'n. But just as soon as I got she began to wave her arms at the

she began to wave her arms at the car, and one of the passengers yanked the bell-rope as though he had a grudge against it and wanted to yank it out. Then I held up, and the lady had to chase and catch up with the car, while all the passengers growled at 'that stupid driver!' Nice, ain't it?"

"But that's one of the smallest of the troubles," continued the driver, and with increasing confidence he poured out his woe to the eager listener. But why recount his wees in full. They are the same as those of almost every man who comes in direct contact with the public—and above all, the traveling public.

First is now so much in demand that a good beefsteak should be found within the reach of all whose appetites for carnivorous food makes them superior to a piscatorial diet. Let Lent be observed by the many who need fish to stimulate their brains, so that the few wise persons may enjoy good beef at moderate prices, and without a rough and tumble fight with the butcher in order to achieve a favorite cut.

PREPERRED TO FREEZE.—Last evening an individual in an advanced state of intoxication was discovered to be reclining on the bank of the river near the foot of 14th street, under favorable freezing conditions. He was taken in charge by some Good Samaritans, and after his circulation had been restored, and his benumbed intellect partially awakened, he returned thanks by desiring to know why his benefactors "didn't let him lay."

A Dose of LAUDANUM.-Mrs. Rosins A DOSE OF LAUDANUM.—Mrs. Rosina Shaffler, wife of Geo, Shaffer, who resides on 33d street, South Wheeling, on Tuesday attempted suicide by swallowing a small dose of laudanum. She has been living unhappily with her husband, which is ascribed as the cause of the attempt to take her own life. She recovered from the effect of the poison, and is now lying at the house of a friend on Jacob street.

EARLY CLOSING, MOVEMENT EXPIRES. EARLY CLOSING. MOVEMENT EXPIRES.

—The early closing movement, which was inaugurated by the majority of our merchants some months since, terminated on Tuesday evening. Accordingly, last evening many of the stores were open much later than usual. We suppose that the early closing hours will be adopted again during the summer months.

Wily is it that children so love the snow? It was an amusing sight yesterday afternoon to see the little folks, as they came from school, rolling on the ground snowballing each other, eating the snow, etc. It seemed to be the object of each of the children to get as much snow upon his or her clothing as possible, in one way or another.

The purple courters to the members of the equal and endowed by their Creator with the inalienable right of denominating Brace, of the Standard, a blarsted idiot. Through courtesy to the members of the Mardi Gras Society we carefully effentived from making illusion to the only unpleasant feature of the banquet, but the Standard reporter, who at the time expressed himself to the writer as highly insulted at the personal remarks of the person he dubs "the Colonel," deliberately swallows his insults and patronizingly pats "the his insults and patronizingly pats "the Colonel" on the shoulder and gives an Colonel" on the shoulder and gives are exparte report of the affair. STEELE MILLER,--This veteran vago STEELE MILLER.—This veteran vaga-bond was yesterday morning discharged from the work house, and before evening was re-arrested upon the same old charge—drunkenness. Only a day or two ago Steele remarked to the writer that he knew he had been "throwing himself away" for some time past, but as soon as he was discharged he would "turn over" put on a clean shirt, and go to work. He put on a clean shirt yesterday, and also took a drink. Whether it was the drink or the shirt, or both, that led to his arrest or the shirt, or both, that led to his arres we leave others to judge. Sich is life.
